

São Paulo School of Advanced Science on Scenarios and Modelling on Biodiversity and Ecosystem Services to Support Human Well-Being

Mercy Funke Salami

University of Ilorin, Ilorin
markmercy12@gmail.com

Mercy Funke Salami bagged First Class Honours Bachelor in Agriculture and a Distinction in M.Sc. Agricultural Economics from the University of Ilorin, Ilorin, Nigeria in 2012 and 2016 respectively. She has been a lecturer and researcher in the Department of Agricultural Economics and Farm Management since 2014. She is currently a PhD candidate at the Department of Agricultural Economics and Farm Management, university of Ilorin. She is also a research associate with the University of Ilorin Sugar research Institute. Mercy is a recipient of several prizes, fellowships and grants. She received the Africa Economic Research Consortium (AERC)/World Bank/ GIZ fellowship on Land Economics and Governance. She has been selected as a PhD Student Partner of the Local Indicator of Climate Change Impact (LICCI) Project, a project funded by the European Research Council (ERC). She had also received travel grants from organizations like International Food Policy Research Institute (IFPRI) and International Association of Agricultural Economists (IAAE). Her main area of research has been in Agricultural Development Economics. Under this major research area, she concentrate more on issues of food security and nutrition, climate change, poverty, health economics, impact assessment and migration with special focus on Nigeria. She is both an independent researcher and an active collaborator in several research projects, with a growing list of fourteen (14) publications in local and international reputable journals. Her Doctoral research focuses on the contribution of Neglected and Underutilized wild foods to food security in Nigeria.